

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) Policy

regulations of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act. These rights transfer to the student when he or she reaches the age of 18 or attends a school beyond the high school level. Students to whom the rights have transferred are "eligible students."

Education records are records that are directly related to a student, maintained by an educational agency or institution, or by a party acting for the agency or institution. Record means any information maintained in any way, including, but not limited to: handwriting, video, audio tape, computer media, film, print, microfilm and microfiche.

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), (20 U.S.C. § 1232g; 34 CFR Part 99), is a federal law that protects the privacy of student education records. FERPA places limitations on the disclosure of personally identifiable information maintained by University of Pikeville with respect to students and limits access to Person serving on the Board of Trustees; and/or Student serving on an official committee, such as a disciplinary or grievance committee, or assisting another school official in performing his or her tasks both in students who are currently enrolled and in those no longer enrolled.

If a significant threat to the health or safety of a student or other individual is determined, university personnel may disclose information from education records to any person, including parents, whose knowledge of the information is necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or other individuals. University personnel must maintain a record of the significant threat that formed the rational basis for the disclosure.

Other exceptions to education records include: sole possession records, records created and maintained by a law enforcement unit for a law enforcement purpose, employment records (unless contingent on attendance), medical records made and maintained in the course of treatment and disclosed only to those individuals providing treatment, records that only contain information about a student after he or she is no longer a student at the University of Pikeville (i.e. alumni records).

Objections must be in writing, signed and dated by the student, and be directed to the University of Pikeville
